

CRAPP Test Infographic Description

CRAPP is an acronym.

C stands for currency. The timeliness of the information. Ask: When was the information published or posted? Has the information been revised or updated? Does your topic require current information, or will older sources work as well? Are the links functional?

R stands for relevance. The importance of the information for your needs. Ask: Does the information relate to your topic or answer your question? Who is the intended audience? Is the information an appropriate level (i.e., not too elementary or advanced for your needs)? Have you looked at a variety of sources before determining this is one you will use? Would you be comfortable citing this source in your research paper?

A stands for authority. The source of information. Ask: Who is the author/publisher/source/sponsor? What are the author's credentials or organizational affiliations? Is the author qualified to write on the topic? Is there contact information, such as a publisher or email address? Does the URL reveal anything about the author or source (e.g., .com, .edu, .gov, .org, .net)?

A stands for accuracy. The reliability, truthfulness and correctness of the content. Ask: Where does the information come from? Is the information supported by evidence? Has the information been reviewed or refereed? Can you verify any of the information in another source or from personal knowledge? Does the language or tone seem unbiased and free of emotion? Are there spelling, grammar or typographical errors?

P stands for purpose. The reason the information exists. Ask: What is the purpose of the information? Is it to inform, teach, sell, entertain or persuade? Do the authors/sponsors make their intentions or purpose clear? Is the information fact, opinion, or propaganda? Does the point of view appear objective and impartial? Are there political, ideological, cultural, religious, institutional or personal biases?
